Nation Wide Art Show Is Assn. Plan

The Carmel Art Association celebrates its 20th birthday this year, and plans are under way to make that a celebration that will resound up and down the entire Pacific Coast.

They are going to put on an invitational art exhibition in August of the best work of the 100 best contemporary artists in the United States. It will be a representative show, without regard to school, the only requirement being that the entry be a good example of an outstanding artist's best work. Substantial prizes will be offered to insure the participation of the top painters.

If plans work out as they are now being made by Paul Whitman and Dr. Remsen Bird, who head the committee, the show should be the best thing in the West this fall.

The co-operation of Carmel and the entire Peninsula will be necessary, but the desirability of such an undertaking is such that whatever support is needed, financial or otherwise, should not be difficult to get.

Another event scheduled for the Art Association Gallery this spring will be of state-wide interest. The board of directors have enthusiastically accepted the invitation of the Carmel High School Art Department to co-operate in an art festival, an exhibition of work of students of high school level. Art students of 400 California High Schools will be invited to participate. The show will be hung in the Carmel Art Association Gallery and the Art Association members will assist with the hanging and judging.

Dr. Crowther

Dr. James Crowther, for seven years beloved pastor of the Church of the Wayfarer, died at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the Monterey Hospital from coronary occlusion, just four days after he announced to a sorrowing parish that he would be forced to retire in the spring because failing health made it impossible to carry on his duties.

He went to the hospital Monday, on the insistence of his doctor, Horace Dormody, who was also his friend, protesting that he had a wedding scheduled for Friday and had to prepare a sermon for next Sunday. Though Dr. Dormody offered to take him to the hospital, he insisted on driving there himself. Almost from the time of his arrival, he was under an oxygen tent. "He had a pretty rough time of it yesterday afternoon," Dr. Dormody said, "but he was better today (the day of his death.) He went out suddenly. He was a great man. I wish I had his fund of knowledge. Yet he had his feet firmly on the ground."

James E. Crowther was born in Lancashire, England, in 1877, and at the age of ten he secured a job in the local cotton mill at a salary of three shillings a week. He went to night school year after year and when, at the age of seventeen, he met a girl named Mary Stanworth, he had already acquired considerable education. When he fell in

Robinson Jeffers Completing New Poem, Double Axe; Says Cruelty Is Only Wickedness He Knows

BY ROSALIND SHARPE

Nearly finished with another long poem called The Double Axe, Robinson Jeffers blames the title on his son, Garth, because "Garth always had double-axes around." The first long poem with the familiar coast locale since Be Angry at the Sun, The Double Axe has to do with the rise and fall of civilization and may be published this fall or else next spring.

"That and a lot of other things," Jeffers said, sitting across from the fire at Tor House the other day rolling a cigarette.

"It begins down the coast. The scene is always down the coast." He hesitated. "It's in two parts. The first part is in war time. The second part is after the war. It's hard to explain. Guess I'll not say any more."

A war poem?

Jeffers looked amused. "It's not directly related to the war. It expresses some disapproval of it probably."

People have always talked about Robinson Jeffers as though he were a man of granite with a piercing, hawk-like glance and a great, gloomy, sombre outlook on human affairs. They have spoken of his magnificent verse, his devotion to the sea and the "inhuman magnificence of things," his reticence and shyness as a man. While these things are undoubtedly true, it seems odd that no one has mentioned what a fine, subtle sense of humor he has and that the "hawk-like glance" (which is certainly very penetrating) has an amused glint in it and is rather kindly and understanding.

The minute people begin talking about a great poet, particularly a great poet who built himself a tower, they get to feeling very ponderous and can't see the man for the tower.

Personally we were interested to note that Jeffers looks something like Gary Cooper, built on tall, rangly lines of that distinctly American type which has a look of the Indian in it; is gifted with extremely quick, keen perceptions although inclined to form conclusions slowly and patiently; speaks in a low voice sometimes rather hard to distinguish but the words (brief as they may be) are of the same fibre as his poetry; and he doesn't take nearly as dim a view of humanity as people have thought.

"I don't think the race is improving," he remarked, "but there is hope for humanity and it will go on for a long time to come. If an atom bomb wrecked civilization, it wouldn't kill all the people."

And what should people do? "Live along decently."

Humanity isn't necessarily evil in itself. "Cruelty is the only form of wickedness I know of," he said. Other evils he dismissed as insignificant. "Extreme dishonesty is sort of contemptible, not wicked."

Jeffers has scant interest in trends in literature and art, but when questioned about the avant-

GETTING AROUND THE PENINSULA

By GLENN CLAIRMONTE

The Pacific Grove school bond election on Tuesday was a victory for the forces that encourage education, at least to the extent that 752 voted in favor of the bonds while only a mere 30 protested. However, when you realize that there are 3,500 registered voters in the area affected — Pacific Grove, Presidio, Ocean View, Country Club and Asilomar—you may wonder why only 782 took the trouble to pilgrimage to the school and express their interest. Principal Thomas R. Turner isn't looking the election in the mouth, however, but is speeding the approval of plans for the new administration building and the new elementary school. It may be next year before the present double shift can be eliminated by the completion of adequate facilities.

Monterey County has left the horse-and-buggy days far behind and is soaring into the airminded era—for it is the first county in the state to own its own airplane. At the Board of Supervisors' meeting last Monday afternoon, Chairman Andy Jacobsen led the winning fight for the purchase of a two-passenger Cessna airplane with a cruising range of over a hundred miles, costing only one-half of the $8,000 available from fines collected from fish and game code violations. Since this county is patrolled by only five wardens, the assistance that will be afforded them by the use of this new plane will make it possible for them adequately to protect the fish and game. It will be jointly used by the Sheriff's office (for emergencies such as persons lost in the wilds), the Fish and Game Commission and the State Forestry Service, and it will collaborate with ground operations by means of its two-way radio equipment. During the fire season, from June to September, the plane will operate from King City and the State Forestry Service will supply a commercial pilot and pay rent for its use. During the remainder of the year Warden Owen Mello will be the pilot and it will be parked at Monterey. It will be used for spying out sea otters, trout, drag nets and for checking on careless hunters. Rigid enforcement of the conservation laws will now be accomplished with professional technique in this county.

As soon as Carmel residents counted the votes in favor of the school bonds, they set about recuperating from the rigors of their campaign—but the business details had to be handled with deliberation. The School Board received five bids for the handling of the bonds from five brokers, and the lowest bidder turned out to be Blyth & Co., who offered a premium of $576 as a special inducement. The interest rates are of course rising at this time and it is considered fortunate that the arrangement with Blyth & Co. requires the payment of a reason-

B. A. Committee Urges Two Hour Parking Limit

Two hour parking limit throughout the business district is only one of the innovations Paul McKinstry was preparing Thursday afternoon to present to the Carmel Business Association at its quarterly dinner meeting Thursday night.

McKinstry, who heads the Business Association traffic committee, has completed a study of conditions and believes much of the traffic difficulties local people are anticipating when the summer crowds arrive can be alleviated if the Business Association urges the City Council to take the following action.

Eliminate all U turns on Ocean Avenue between Junipero and Monte Verde, and at the intersections of Dolores and Fifth, and Dolores and Sixth.

Correct parking abuses on Ocean from Scenic to Rio Road (the beach turn-around at the foot of Ocean.) "This is a matter of health and safety," McKinstry told The Pine Cone. "I am not interested in time-limit parking here, but in a better arrangement of parking stalls so that traffic can move more smoothly in this congested spot."

Create 33 degree angle parking on both sides of Ocean Avenue between Monte Verde and Lincoln. Under the present 90 degree angle parking, cars back out directly into the street and block traffic.

Paint zones and cross walks monthly.

Institute two hour parking limit on both sides of the following streets: Ocean from Mission to Monte Verde; San Carlos from south side of Sixth to the south side of Seventh; Dolores from the

The Editor's Column

Welcome, Planning Commission

Seven serious-minded, intelligent people, well schooled in the intangibles that make up the Carmel way of life, collected around the council table Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock for the first meeting of the Third Carmel Planning Commission.

Yes, there have been two others, which petered out from lack of authority and lack of need for such a body in Carmel at the time of their existence.

Things are different now. The need is obvious as City Attorney William Hudson pointed out to the commission—"Because of the type of men who have served on the city councils in the past Carmel has grown beautiful, so beautiful that we are about to be taken over. Everybody wants to live here." Mayor Godwin said, "Our problems are getting more and more difficult, some of our problems will deal with new ideas and new thought. Most immediate problems are zoning, streets, grades, storm drains, planting young trees, parking and traffic. It is up to interested citizens to participate in solving these problems or we may lose some of the things we who have lived here for many years have learned to love." He added that he considered the members of the planning commission leaders among the interested citizens.

In some communities the matters that have been placed in the commission's jurisdiction would be considered minor details. Here in a community where beauty and leisurely living are regarded as primary values, the governing body which has control over those matters is the body that has power of life and death.

The special grace that is Carmel is an indefinable thing that has developed through a period of years, and as newcomers have joined the community, they have come in small enough numbers to be absorbed and kept in check until they adjusted themselves to the Carmel way of life and became its most enthusiastic advocates. But the great danger, seen by the council and the planning commission, and all thoughtful citizens, is that the influx will become so great that Carmel will be inundated, that the community cannot absorb and digest and shape the newcomers fast

McCreery Heads Planning Board; Mawdsley, Clerk

P. A. McCreery was elected chairman, Peter Mawdsley, secretary, at the organization meeting of the Carmel Planning Commission Wednesday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock. The chair was offered the city council member who serves on the commission, Donald Craig, but he declined on the grounds that because he was a council member he felt he should not accept leadership of the planning group. "It might give rise to the feeling that I'm a messenger boy from the council. I want this body to feel independent of the council in its deliberations."

McCreery, in taking the chair, said only that he "would do his best." From his period of service on the city council, first as street commissioner and finally as mayor, he has established a reputation as an ardent and determined fighter for the preservation of the natural beauties of the town. Thirteenth street was surfaced while he was street commissioner. It serves as an example of how a Car-

ABALONE LEAGUE STARTS SUNDAY

Promptly at 1.30 Sunday afternoon Doc Stamford, High Commissioner of the Abalone Softball League, will throw out the first ball and another season of fun, good clean play, and a bit of heckling will get under way. The coming season should produce some of the most interesting softball yet witnessed in the many years of Abalone history. With tremendous interest in softball built up during last season every youngster and adult should be anxious to play on one of the Abalone League teams. There is still room for additional players on each of the four teams entered in the league and all that is necessary to get up and take your swings is to pay a dollar to the league moguls and be present at the High School field on Sunday. Each team is required by league rule to have a grammar school boy and a woman as active participants in all games. Two high school boys are also carried by each team. Softball pastimers who would like to sign up before Sunday may do so at The Pine Cone office or at Mike Balazs' Quality Market.

Managers guiding the strategy of the four teams are: Cree Wilder, Charles Childers, Art Hull, and Jack Giles. These four worthies are wily exponents of the game and know all the tricks wrapped up in Abalone League rules. Although they have the reputation of driving their players in order to get the utmost out of them, they have been known to ease up a little when their team is sixteen runs ahead. Players will not know the skipper of their club until they report to the high school field on Sunday afternoon. All players are asked to report for the 1:30 game in order that the teams may be equitably arranged.

True Abalone Leaguers already signed are: Mike Balazs, Bob Bell, Russ Bohlke, Chif Cook, Charlie Childers, M. Foster, Jack Giles, Tom Handley, Jay Huffman, Art Hull, Tom Hendricks, Jimmy Kelsey, Ivan Kelsey, Ruel King, Allen Knight, Bud Butts, Howard Lawry Lloyd Miller, Ky Miyamoto, Gordy Miyamoto, Archie Miyamoto, Ralph Meentz, George Mosoli, Joe Nicholson, Laurabelle Nicholson, Gene Ricketts, Helen Ricketts, Mel Ray, Harold Studevant, Fran Studevant, Ed Sullivan, Pat Timbers, John Todd, Cree Wilder, Jack Whitsides, Norvel Yerkes, and John Younkin.

Knotty problems which arise, and there will be plenty of them, will be adjudicated by the most sagacious arbiter ever to don the mask and windpad, Doc "I Haven't Missed One Yet" Staniford. Although Doc will not umpire on an active scale during the actual game play, he will closely scrutinize the work of Umpire-In-Chief Andy Weimann and his staff.

With the weather man promising the best in softball weather for next Sunday's opener, there should be a galaxy of fans on hand for an afternoon of fun and novel softball.

BUSY SEASON AHEAD AT CARMEL HIGH SCHOOL

With 80 boys already signed up for spring sports, there will be very few idle hours for Carmel lads during the rest of the current semester. Baseball, Track, Golf, Tennis, and Swimming will be carried on interscholastically, while Softball, Badminton, and Boxing will be carried on in the Intramural program. Every boy in school will have an opportunity to engage in activities of a competitive nature.

Golf and tennis will get away to a flying start this Saturday morning, when Carmel racquet and club wielders travel to Santa Cruz to meet the Red and White teams. Golfers who are trying to iron out hooks and slices at the Pebble Beach course each Tuesday and Thursday afternoon are: Pete Berg, Bob Rissel, Phil Wettengel, Murrey Wight, Frank Timmins, Paul Warner, Gene Vandervort, Erik Short, Dick Weer, Bud Pitman, Rod Dewar, and Bill Cross. Phil Wettengel is the only letterman left from last year's fine team, but several newcomers are showing promise of developing into first class performers. John Westover will distribute his wealth of golf knowledge to the neophyte divot diggers.

The tennis team is well stocked with lettermen from last season and should be favorites to cop the CCAL title. With Dick Hawk and Lee Winslow as a nucleus the Red and Grey can throw a veteran aggregation at all its opponents. Other lettermen are: Mike Monahan, Paul Baxter, Mat Schmutz, Roger Byers, and Perry Brown. Candidates who are pressing the lettermen for spots on this year's team are: Lew McCreery, Tom McGregor, Rob McGregor, Pete Carpenter, Dick Taplin, Richard Mulholland, Basil Allaire, Nelson Byers, Blair McDonald, William Wilde, Pat Casey, and Bob Bell. Harold Grande, veteran tennis mentor, from Burbank High School, will guide the racquet pushers this season.

With the terse command, "Get Set," Leo Harris will start the Padres on their first venture of the 1947 track season this afternoon when the classes vie to see which is superior in speed and strength. The interclass meet always produces some fierce competition and each class will be doing its utmost to walk off with the interclass tropny. The following boys have signed up for the track and field team: Lee Winslow, Tom Handley, Dick Taplin Tom McGregor, Peter Berg, Bob Barry, Bill Hodgson, Basil Allaire, Paul Baxter, Paul Warner, John Blinks, Vic Harber, Nelson Byers, Dick Garguilo, Dick Weer, Dave Hudson, Legare McNeill, Bob Bell, Pat Casey, Roger Byers, Don Shearn, Perry Brown, Bud Fitman, Bernie Adams, Wynne Hutchings, Tom Corley, Howard DeAmaral, Floyd Adams, Don Day, Curtis Gorham, and Bill Cross. With NCS 1320 yard champion, Bob Barry, as a starter, the Padres should provide stubborn opposition in all their track meets this season. Vic Harber, Bill Hodgson, Dick Garguilo, Joe Goodrich, Herman Menezs, and Howard De Amaral were consistent scorers last year and should rack up some points for the Padre cause this season. First league competition will find the Red and Grey meeting King City and Gonzales at Gonzales on Saturday, March 22nd. Howard Byrne will guide the workouts of the trackmen.

Many familiar faces will be on the diamond when the Carmel horsehiders take the field against King City on March 28th. A veteran aggregation is returning from last season and in their few workouts they have looked impressive both in the field and at the dish. Lee Winslow and Lew McCreery present a hard-working battery which should be even better than last year. Paul Warner, Murrey Wight, Phil Wettengel, Dick Sumner, Dick Taplin, Art Harber, Frank Timmins, Dick Weer, Gene Vandervort, and Don Day are trying to establish themselves at invield positions, while Bob Bell, Pat Dormody, Newt Goodrich, Bob Ris-

Ferrante, Nielsen Will Run For Re-election To School Board May 16

There will be a school board election May 16 to fill two vacancies on the board of trustees, Peter Ferrante's and Chairman Harold Nielsen's whose terms of office expire at that time. Both members will run for re-election. Closing date for candidates to file intentions to run is April 16.

Number 1 building project at the high school, a new science room to be added to the north end of the upper tier of class rooms, can still be completed before the fall opening of school, Superintendent Leo Harris told the board of Trustees at its meeting Tuesday night. Plans are all drawn and approved. Delay this far has been due to the inability of the board to get permission from the C. P. A. to build. However, Kump and Co., high school architects, believe they can get the C. P. A. approval now. The board authorized Harris to advertise for bids should C. P. A. approval come through before the next board meeting. The present science room, used by all the science classes, is taxed to capacity. Next year's senior class will have a larger registration in science courses as will next year's sophomore class, and the need for more space is acute, Harris said.

Work will begin immediately on a utility building at the high school to house the school station wagon, truck and gasoline lawn-mower, and to provide storage room for the custodian's equipment. Stolte and Co.'s bid of $5371 was accepted by the board as the lowest. Geyer bid $5827 and Murphy $6235. It will be a frame building with adobe veneer and concrete floor. Its cost does not come out of the $450,000 bond issue voted last month for school plant construction since $4000 had already been set aside for it in the budget. The $4435.00 paving contract for the center field at Sunset School awarded to the Granite Construction Co., also comes out of budget money.

In view of the fact that other schools pay their substitute teachers from $9.00 to $9.50 a day, Superintendent Harris recommended that the board increase the present $8.00 pay for substitutes in the Carmel system. The board voted to raise the pay to $9.00. Other salary matters included the increasing of administrative minimum salaries by $600 a year, with a scheduled yearly increase of $150 a year, dependent on the recommendation of the superintendent. Present personnel will be given credit for previous service in the district when their place is determined in the new salary schedule. Minimum pay for vice principals was set at $3800, principals, $3900. That of district superintendent was not discussed.

Classroom teachers' organization wrote the board requesting that the clause be reinstated in their salary schedules allowing for credit for educational travel and that additional school attendance be not required for teachers over sixty. On the recommendation of the evaluation committee, no action was taken by the board.

A site survey by Clayton B. Neill and George C. Bestor, for the new elementary school north of Ocean Avenue is underway at a cost of $325, to provide Kump and Company with information necessary for drawing up plans for the building.

The board gave Harris permission to negotiate with Monterey High School to sell the six-tier bleachers so they can be replaced with eight-tier bleachers in the gymnasium, matching the set of eight-tier bleachers recently installed on the north side. The new bleachers would bring the gymnasium seating capacity up to the maximum, 1000.

Superintendent Harris provided the school board with copies of a student self-rating test that will be given to the ninth graders and the seniors. Object of the test is to make the student aware of the personality qualities behavior, work habits, leadership and health upon which school authorities are frequently asked by prospective employers to rate students.

At the special meeting last week, the board instructed the secretary to write a letter to O. W. Irwin expressing their appreciation for his work as chairman of the bond election committee. Superintendent Leo Harris presented his resignation effective July 1, so as to be able to accept the position of Athletic Director at University of Oregon. The resignation was accepted with regret. The board approved Kump and Company's plans for the new recreation building and discussed plans for the purchase of additional land to provide for a baseball diamond at the high school.

Lovely Carmel Girls And Women To Model For PTA

By BEE MARTIN

Next Thursday, from 3 to 5 p. m., a gala Fashion Tea will take place at the La Playa Hotel to herald the Spring! This is truly an unusual type of event for Carmel, but promises to be most interesting and lots of fun. Judging by the exuberance of early ticket seekers, it should also be extremely successful. New length suits, spiralling cocktail dresses, ribboned hats, popular piques, and luscious furs will tantalize the most conservative to commence her Spring buying spree.

Hostesses at the tea tables will be past presidents of the P. T. A. Mrs. Joseph Schoeninger, Mrs. E. A. H. Watson, Miss Clara Kellogg, Mrs. Vera Peck Millis, Mrs. Hurd Comstock, and Mrs. Ernest Morehouse.

Lorgnettes on platinum chains might appear in the audience, but probably gaily flowered chapeaux and sparkly lapel ornaments will be more predominant. Easter collections shown will be taken from the popular Carmel shops.

Tickets, to be sold at $1.25 each, may be obtained from Alfred Fry at La Playa Hotel, Putnam and Raggett, or Mrs. Wilbur Wilkinson at 1031-W. And, of interest to mothers, is the item that they may park their children at the Sunset Kindergarten with reliable sitters while they enjoy the tea.

Models for the afternoon are all local Carmel matrons, some with professional experience, and some new to the game. And yes! Masculine attire, too, will be sported. For the "man of the hour" is none other than four-year-old Gordon Parker, Jr. His contemporaries will be Misses Judith Ann Leslie and mother Mrs. Edgar Leslie and Miss Suzanne Pilot. Others are Miss Sue Walter Pilot. Others are; Miss Sue Brooks and Mrs. Nora Brooks, Miss Ruth Burrows, Miss Mary Gregory, Miss Evelyn Diekemper, Mrs. Steve Jones, Mrs. Don Painter, Mrs. Henry Rink, Mrs. Arthur Smiley, Mrs. Mary Solari, Miss Sue Steuber, Mrs. Edmund Sullivan, Miss Patty McKee, Miss Joan Tait, and Miss Frances Wright. Commentator for these chosen lovelies will be Mrs. Beverly T. Viney, who will also display hats.

All proceeds will go into the P. T. A. funds.

Serving on the Fashion Tea Committee are: Chairman, Mrs. H. B. Banks and Co-Chairman, Mrs. Elizabeth Cass, Mrs. G. H. Burnette, Mesdames Thomas Elston, Richard Lofton, Eugene Scheffer, Mary Douglas Elliott, Wilbur Wilkinson, B. F. Sowell, and Jack Martin.

The Derek Raynes' champion fox terrier, The Young Pretender of Andely, was awarded the silver trophy for best fox terrier at the Oakland show last Sunday. This repeats his win last month at the San Francisco show. This is second year in succession that he has won the two major shows in northern California.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Mystery of the Rocking Chair

Ma Hoskins has a favorite rocking chair that's worn and shabby, with a noisy creak. Pa Hoskins has listened to that squeak for thirty years . . . and he decided to do something about it. So he bought a new rocker, and hid the other in the barn.

Ma allowed as how grateful she was . . . but when Pa missed her one afternoon, he heard a familiar sound that led him to the barn. There was Ma rocking happily in her old chair—squeak . . . squeak.

No need to tell you how Pa felt. Quick as a wink he hid the new rocker and then brought Ma's old chair back to the house. Now when he hears that squeak, he looks at the mellow glass of beer he's drinking and says to himself: "She's just as entitled to her small pleasures as I am."

From where I sit, that's one of the reasons the Hoskinses are the happiest, oldest-married, peacefulest folks in our town.

love with this Mary and was converted to a really serious brand of Christianity because of her inspiration, he became a lay preacher and devoted his Sundays to traveling over a large circuit without pay. Three years later he managed to buy a wedding ring, in order to marry Mary, only by selling his fiddle, and he continued his ten hours a day working at the mill, then earning three dollars a week. The Crowthers came to the United States in 1901 in the steerage of an old boat and made their way to South Dakota where he had been called to preach. During the next eight years he studied prodigiously in order to complete sixteen years' of credentials. He won three oratorical contests and was made a member of three scholastic societies by the time he had earned four degrees.

Dr. Crowther became secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions and his Mary acted as his stenographer. In the course of time they were sent abroad on a tour of inspection and they traveled through thirty-eight countries together during their forty-nine years of marriage.

In this country Dr. Crowther preached in many Methodist churches, from Philadelphia to Seattle, always with the zeal of a missionary. He was once sent to Honolulu as a delegate to the first Institute of Pacific Relations, and later he was host to that Institute in Seattle, entertaining representatives of fifty American universities.

In all his work he found inspiration from his wife, of whom he said, "Her name was Mary and she lived up to it," but four years ago she died after many years of illness. "Since that time," Dr. Crowther's would say, "I always felt her nearby whenever I was composing a sermon." Because of a musical pageant entitled The Wayfarer, which Dr. Crowther once composed and produced in Columbus, New York and Seattle, the Carmel Community Church changed its name to the Church of the Wayfarer in 1940 when Dr. Crowther came to this region and supervised the remodeling of the edifice.

Last Sunday Dr. Crowther preached his last sermon, in this church, to a congregation which loved him overwhelmingly. When those filing into the pews turned to the program of the day and found a farewell message in italics, announcing Dr. Crowther's plan to retire, the church was filled with sighs of regret, and many of the churchgoers were in tears.

Great though the shock of his retirement was, his death following so closely will be a blow not only to his parish, but to the community at large, which he was ever ready to serve.

He has a sister in Los Angeles. The rest of his relatives are in England. Dorney will have charge of arrangements.

Other bidders had situplated from 2 percent to 2¼ percent as the rate of interest they required and that is the reason the award was made to Blyth & Co. Now that the cash is available the two grade school sites will be purchased at once and construction of the new facilities will go forward.

When the S. P. C. A. offered this week to assume responsibility for the work that has to be done by the County Animal Shelter at Marina, the County Board of Supervisors began to consider all the angles. Chairman Andy Jacobsen, rubbing his chin gravely, commented, "We'll need a lot more information before we can reach a decision about this. We are already making inquiries as to how such a plan works in other counties, and we'll go into the matter thoroughly." Mr. Jacobsen has a memory of other times and other methods and as a result realizes how serious a change of procedure is. There was a time when the county subsidized the S. P. C. A., and during the rabies epidemic found it necessary to take over completely. Perhaps a complete reorganization of the S. P. C. A. would be required before the county would be willing to relinquish its $15,000 plant to the control of the Society, which at present operates only as a Peninsula group. "It would have to become a county-wide organization," Mr. Jacobsen said, "with new and aggressive leadership, before the Board of Supervisors could feel justified in taking such a step."

DOWN ON COLLIER BILL

The result of the Republican Rejuvenated sponsored talks given in this area by John Arthur Reynolds of Fresno on the subject of the $2,800,000,000 Collier highway bill was a majority vote against the bill in the club polls. He appeared before fifteen active organizations: Pacific Grove Service Club, Monterey Civic Club, Pacific Grove Civic Club, Carmel Women's Club, Business and Professional Women's Club of Monterey, League of Women Voters, Monterey Kiwanis Club, 20-30 Club of Monterey, Monterey Junior Chamber of Commerce, Salinas Kiwanis Club, Carmel Lions Club, Senior Class of Salinas Junior College, Senior Class of Pacific Grove High School, and Republicans Rejuvenated.

Henry Miller's Works Analyzed By Toni Ricketts

Last Tuesday evening Mrs. Toni Ricketts drove over the hill at the invitation of Mrs. Glenn Clairmonte and addressed the class in Current Literature which meets every week in Room 11 of Sunset School. Her discussion of Henry Miller as a man and as a writer was a brilliant study and provided rare entertainment for the assembled students.

There were frequent friendly controversies turned up as Mrs. Ricketts elucidated Mr. Miller's philosophy of life, and her enthusiasm over the passages she read from his many publications awoke admiration for his astounding eloquence and vigor. Mr. Miller, who now makes his home at Partington Ridge below the Big Sur, first won recognition in Paris after nearly twenty-five years of neglect by the public, and since his return to this country his popularity has been skyrocketing. His modernity in thought and expression, and his faith in the spirit of man before and beneath the distortion of reason, account for his vast following.

Mrs. Rickett's recital of her enjoyment of his friendship and of his work set the thirty-five members of the class who were present to mapping out a new reading program for themselves.

McKinstry has found, in a check up, that there are 307 parking places in the two hour limit parking area he has outlined. Of these, 67 are on Ocean Avenue. One can estimate a turnover three times a day in 80 percent of the parking slots if there were a two hour parking limit. This would allow for 822 parking places a day.

McKinstry intends to make a survey this weekend to discover how many cars parked in the business district at 9 a. m. are still there at 4:00 p. m. so as to find how many of the 307 parking places are sacrificed to dead storage.

His committee consists of Clayton Neill, Ralph Castagna and A. B. Hardy. The plan had the approval of the board of directors of the Business Association before it went up for approval to the membership in general meeting.

New Police Officer Former Bombardier

A new member of the Carmel Police Department has recently been appointed — Kenneth T. Wright, formerly of the Glendale Police Department. He is twenty-eight years old and unmarried. After his course at the Glendale Junior College, Mr. Wright enlisted in the Army Air Corps as an Aviation Cadet and received his pre-flight training at Santa Ana Air Base. He flew twenty-five combat missions over Germany as a bombardier and received his honorable discharge in October of 1945. While adjusting to civilian life Mr. Wright earned his diploma from the Police Training Academy and also attended the Police Science School at the University of Southern California. Mr. Wright says, "While on a pre-war vacation to Carmel I was struck with the beauty of the town and since then have always had a desire to make my home here."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

"God is able to make all grace abound toward you; that ye, always having all sufficiency in all things, may abound to every good work" (II Corinthians 9:8). This is the Golden Text for the Christian Science Lesson-Sermon for Sunday, March 16. The subject is "Substance."

Included in the sermon are these citations:

II Peter: "The day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night; in the which the heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat, the earth also and the works that are therein shall be burned up" (3:10).

"Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "When we realize that Life is Spirit, never in nor of matter, this understanding will expand into self-completeness,, finding all in God, good, and needing no other consciousness" (p. 264).

L.W.V. To Hold State Convention At Asilomar On May 20, 21, 22

The state convention of the League of Women Voters will be held at Asilomar in May, and the Monterey Peninsula and Salinas Leagues have been invited to serve as co-hostesses for the occasion, Mrs. Thor Hellum, president of the local League, announced this week. This is a rare opportunity, Mrs. Hellum points out, for members on the Peninsula to see how the state organization unifies a program of action based on recommendations from the twenty-five leagues in the state. Convention dates are May 20, 21, and 22.

The state board of the League met in Berkeley with the president, Mrs. George B. Scheer, in the last days of February to select the place and plan the program for the session and outline the work for next year. The official year of the organization begins April 1, and the year's activities will be adopted at the May convention.

The board also, following out the directives and votes of the delegates to the recent conference in San Jose, decided to limit the number of bills in the Legislature which the League will recommend for support by the state organization. Out of some 4,200 bills, the board selected five fields for consideration: education, public health, housing and planning, and economic policies. The board also officially opposed the bill calling for re-registration of voters.

In education the bills receiving League approval provide for continuation of the Child Care Centers; better school district organization; equalization of apportionment of school funds; state supervision of private nursery schools, kindergartens, and elementary schools; repeal of the school code provision allowing separate schools for different races. In public health, bills to establish a statewide plan for standards for local health departments with state financial aid, and bills providing improved procedure for admission to mental hospitals will receive the League's support.

In housing and planning the League will advocate establishment of a state housing and re-development agency and also measures to supply state fiscal aid for low rent and moderate rental housing, and attention will be given to laws for rent control. In economic policies the L. W. V. will support legislation along the lines of AB-2236 which transfers certain functions of the Reconstruction and Re-employment Commission to the Governor's office upon expiration of present powers of the Commission. The League has three registered advocates at Sacramento, with the three state chairmen of housing, public health, and economic policies to assist in observing legislative action.

Directions for the stand taken by the board were voted by the delegates to the San Jose conference after discussion in round tables in the various fields, with the decision made by democratic majority vote.

Angna Enters To Dance Here April 5

Angna Enters will be presented in the Sunset School Auditorium here by the Denny-Watrous management on Saturday evening, April 5. The celebrated dancer, who calls her program Dance Episodes, has so unique and distinguished a program that she has been singled out for a Guggenheim Fellowship award—the only dancer ever to receive that honor.

Tickets for the Angna Enters recital go on sale next Monday morning at Stanford's Drug Store, Carmel, and at Abinante's Music Store, Monterey. Interest is so great in the coming event that many advance seat reservations are already on file.

The box office at the Carmel Land Company will open on March 24.

SUNSET SCHOOL NOTES

Mrs. Kathryn French's Second Grade

One day when I was walking to the grocery store I met a cat. It purred against my leg. I said, "You go home, kitty." He went around the corner and I didn't know he was following me, but he got home before I did, and there he was sitting on my doorstep. I gave him some milk and told him to go home. He kept coming and I gave him some more milk and told him to go home.

One morning he fell into my mother's washing machine and got spun around and spun around. My mother wasn't there, but I heard him cry, "Me-ow!" I pulled the plug out. The kitty wasn't hurt, but he went home and I haven't seen him again.—Margo Sloane.

Yesterday I went down to the mouth of the river. This big wave came along about twenty inches high and spoiled the hole I was digging. I said, "Doggone you!" It kept coming, so I went to the sand pit to see what was there.

—Glenn Dewey.

Once my aunt bought me a goldfish. We named him Flippy. I took him to school. He lived in an aquarium with two other fish. This was when I was in kindergarten. I brought him home and he flipped all over the pan and we had to put him in the park pond.

—Gerry Hawkswood.

Once I had a little grasshopper my grandmother caught. I put him in a jar with my butterfly. I let the butterfly go because his wing was broken. One morning I woke up and the grasshopper was dead.

—Eddie Durant.

My sister got a bicycle. She said to me, "Why don't you ride it?" I said it was so heavy it would fall on me, but I tried, and I rode all over on it.—Suzanne Bestor.

We came over to America on the S. S. America from Nottingham, England. It took us one week. A bomb cracked our house and killed our grandmother. I have two brothers and we are all going to Sunset School. We like Carmel.

—Johnny Gray.

Mrs. Virginia Nye's Third Grade

My cat is funny. I taught him to get under a box and make it move. Once he turned it over. It was very funny.—Kent Minichiello.

I am going to Colorado in the spring. My mother says that we can go out in the snow and make a snow man. How glad I am!

—Sylvia Giem.

I have o dog. His name is Bon Bon. He is very funny. This morning my mother and I were looking at him and what do you think we saw? We saw that he was getting brown and he is really black.

—Robin Burnham.

We have two new children in our room, their names are Sandra Smith and David Gray. They are making new friends in our classroom. David is from England and Sandra has just come from Pearl Harbor. They are very nice.

Renee Wurzmann.

CONSERVATION WEEK

This is Conservation Week. It reminds us to save food and other things. Conservation Week reminds us to save animals and wild life and prevent forest fires. We should help things to grow.

—Jimmy Konrad.

I like the American schools better than the English schools. In England the teachers are stricter. In America the teachers are more kind.—David Gray.

Jean Bunch

A letter received from Jesse Bunch by Judge George Ross announces the death of his wife Jean Bunch at Riverside, February 19. They published the Carmel Sun and had a printing office on Dolores near Seventh, in Carmel, afterward moving to New Monterey. Later they moved to Texas where they had a paper and then after a period in Arizona, moved to Riverside.

Mrs. Pogge Tells P.T.A. What Makes Up A "Normal" Child

Mrs. F. H. Pogge, child guidance consultant, led an informal discussion on the Parental Contribution to the Mental Health of the Child at the P. T. A. meeting Tuesday afternoon. There was considerable query as to the nature of a normal child, if such a thing exists. Mrs. Pogge concluded this preliminary discussion by mentioning four characteristics which may be expected of a reasonably normal child. A child who is happy most of the time, who is fairly considerate, who conforms to the demands of society within reason and who does not cause too much trouble may be assumed to be normal.

Mrs. Pogge emphasized the great importance of the home in giving a child healthy emotional responses and in enabling the child to develop as a unique individual, using his own abilities to the fullest, whether great or small or average. She also commented on the unfortunate tendency of some parents to drive their children, who might more properly be allowed to proceed at their own rate of development.

Social adjustment must be balanced intelligently with scholastic achievement to make a happy child. If a series of unhappy emotional responses is built up in any individual there will be resulting worry, frustration and hostility. The problem is to balance the individual's needs against the needs of others. Compromise is the essence of child-rearing, and in the end happy homes produce happy well-rounded children.

Mrs. Pogge recommended three books to parents who wish to read further on the matter: The Parents' Manual by Anna Wolff, In Defense of Children by B. Beverley, Parents and Children Go To School by Dorothy Baruch.

Reports were given by Mrs. Rob Deissler, and Mrs. Herbert Blanks.

After the meeting tea was served by Mrs. Gordon R. Parker, hospitality chairman of the P. T. A.

Musical Art Club Presents Choir In P. G. Concert

The San Jose State College choir, under the auspices of the Musical Art Club, will appear at the Mayflower Congregational Church in Pacific Grove at 8:00 o'clock tonight.

The program:

Group One: The Spirit Also Helpeth Us, motet for double chorus by J. S. Bach; Give Thanks, by Schved; Tenevrae Factae Sunt, by Ingegneri; Exultate Deo, by Palestrina; Crucifixus, by Lotti.

Group Two: Springtime of the Year, by Vaughn Williams; It is a Good Thing to Give Thanks, by Schvedov; Trois Beaux Oiseaux de Paradis, by Ravel, soprano solo by Emily Baptista; The Three Kings, by Willan.

Group Three: Salvation is Created by Tschnesnokoff; Benedictus, by Paladihle, soloists Emily Baptista and Victor McClane, tenor; Cloud Messengers, by Cesar Cui; Motet for Advent, by Schreck.

The concert will be open to members of the club and their guests who present guest cards, to members of the congregation of the church, and to all members of the highschool musical organizations of the Peninsula. The chorus will be under the direction of William J. Erlendson, who acted as director of the group before the war. He has recently returned to his position after a period of service with the armed forces, during which he carried on his musical work. He was formerly a student of Melius Christenson of Minnesota, a recognized leader in the field of choral music. Mr. Erlendson received his doctorate in music from Columbia University.

Public Invited To Civic Unity Play

Mr. Fritz Wurzmann, president of the Monterey Peninsula Council for Civic Unity, has announced the presentation of a popular play next Sunday evening, March 16, at 8 p. m. in the Girl Scout House, and the public is invited to attend. The play is Deep Are the Roots, by d'Usseau and Gow, and it has had a successful run on Broadway. Miss Irene Alexander is the director of the local production and the leads are taken by Lee Crowe and Ruth Marion McElroy, supported by Joseph Schoeninger, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hooper, Mrs. Phyllis Oliver, Mrs. Andre Moreau and Victor Brune. The work of this group has heretofore been of a less public nature and this is the first opportunity the public has had recently to learn about their activities. Any residents who are interested in furthering the solidarity of the citizenry are requested to support the work by their attendance at this and later meetings of the Council.

"The recent war called to our attention so painfully the danger of segregation of sections of the populace in various countries that the importance of this work must surely be felt by everyone who allows himself to consider the consequences of a divided world," Mr. Wurzmann says.

Mrs. Carol Edwards Brings Out New Book Of Verse

Mrs. Carol Edwards, who has been a Carmelite for about twenty-three years, recently brought out A Little Book of Verse, printed by The Pine Cone Press. It is now available at Carmel bookstores.

It contains twenty-four of her original poems and one written by her well known dancer daughter, June Delight, at the age of eleven years.

The cover design, an etching of a wind-tossed cypress, is by Lewis Carleton Ryan, and adds to the attractiveness of the little book.

Those who have had a preview pronounce the poems "warmhearted and heart-warming." Mrs. Edwards formerly collaborated with her late husband, George Thornton Edwards, in compiling the Maine Poets Calendar, an anthology of poetry by Maine residents. Mrs. Edwards has been a lifelong friend of Kate Douglas Wiggin, who wrote the prologue to one of Mr. Edawrds' books, The Garland of Delight.

Public Invited To League Discussion On C. V. Project

The public is invited to attend the general meeting of the League of Women Voters to hear speakers on the Central Valley Project at Sunset School library next Friday evening, March 21, at eight o'clock. Mr. Richard Boke, regional director of reclamation on the project, or a representative from his office, and a representative from the Pacific Gas and Electric Company will speak. The project has been under study for the past four months by a group of members of the League, who have arranged the program.

Lady Kinnoull's Novel Honored

A signal honor was conferred on Lady Kinnoull's novel, Come Home, Traveller, the review of which appeared in The Pine Cone on the day of publication. Professor Guy Montgomery, head of the English department of the University of California at Berkeley, in reviewing Come Home, Traveller at the Paulist Circulating Library in San Francisco, placed it as one of the three most important recent novels written by Catholics. The other two were Brideshead Revisited, by Evelyn Waugh, and A Woman of the Pharisees, by Francois Mauriac. As Come Home, Traveller is a first novel, and the other two are considered the best work, so far, of long practiced and justly famous novelists, the weight on the compliment can be gauged. Richard Church, a distinguished English poet, in a review of Come Home, Traveller, in a London daily paper, also compared Lady Kinnoull's work to that of Mauriac, a high compliment.

Why freight rates are going up...

Since 1939, railroad employes have had three general pay raises totaling 52 6/10%, and the prices of fuel, materials and supplies have risen 61 6/10%.

But when the war ended in 1945, the railroads were still hauling freight at rates no higher, and in some cases lower, than when the war began.

Without increased revenues, railroads could not meet these costs and also provide improvements in equipment and facilities—improvements that are essential for the low-cost freight and passenger services which are necessary to America's high standard of living.

Under these circumstances—and almost a year after the last major wage increase—the Interstate Commerce Commission recently approved an average increase in freight rates of 17 6/10%.

Of all the price increases in America today, few have been so little and so late as that in the price of railroad transportation.

How important are healthy railroads to a prosperous country?

Only when the railroads are financially healthy can they provide the new equipment, improved road beds, and better terminal facilities needed for still better service to you.

The defense of the nation depends upon the continuance of the efficient transportation which served the nation so well in the last war.

The railroads are among the largest employers of labor. They buy over 100,000 different products. They pay big taxes—taxes which are spent not only for public schools, public health, and police and fire protection, but even for highways, airways, airports and inland waterways.

Railroads are America's lifeline—keeping goods flowing among the 48 states day and night in all weather.

They can continue to do this only if there is a reasonable balance between income and outgo. Like yourself, the railroads must make ends meet!

We are publishing this and other advertisements to talk with you at first hand about matters which are important to everybody.

BY L. LUCILE TURNER

Materials, particularly periodicals, from which citizens may gain information that promotes understanding of international problems, were listed and discussed by Mrs. Jackson Chance, state chairman of international relations of the League of Women Voters, at the northern conference of the organization in San Jose recently. Many of the periodicals are available at the public library, as few persons will care to purchase all of them. However, certain important publications may be had free of charge. The interest of the League last year centered upon establishing civilian control of atomic energy, and Congress having put that into the law, the next step is settling the matter and method of international control of atomic energy and research.

Next comes the problem of strengthening the United Nations, then food relief, trusteeship over backward peoples, the problems of displaced persons and refugees. It is important to avoid too wide a field of study, but Americans should add study of conditions in the Philippines, with which we have too little acquaintance. Most periodicals nowadays discuss these questions, often without sufficient background for an authoritative viewpoint, and consequently are of little value to the reader. Only those groups that study both sides of a question and are free from bias can give conclusions that deserve support. Government publications fall within this category.

Free publications: From the State Department one may obtain a copy of the Reciprocal Trade Program and material on the International Trade Organization. As one may wish to write to representatives in Congress, it is well to get the Official Lists of Committees, one from the Clerk of the House of Representatives, the other from Secretary of the Senate; these lists give the full names and office addresses of all committee chairmen and members. If interested, one may ask to be put on the mailing list of the National Committee of Atomic Information, 1749 L Street N. W., Washington, D. C. Bulletins of the Northern California Association of Scientists, 68 Post St., San Francisco, contain information on atomic energy; the issue of June 1, 1946, has an important article on international control. Some of the member scientists had a part in the development of atomic fission and desire that the public know the importance and best methods of control of atomic energy.

Publications that must be bought: Publications of the League of Women Voters—Trends in Government, an inexpensive leaflet issued from the Washington, D. C., office bi-weekly and dealing with acts of the national government; Memos (10 cents each), concise, factual explanations of individual problems before the government, as those on Reciprocal Trade Agreements, Central Valley Project, Government and Our Minorities, etc.; Briefs for Action (5 cents each), four page leaflets giving up to date conditions in problems needing immediate attention, as on Hunger in Europe, Atomic Energy, Reorganization of Congress 1946, etc. Copies of League publications may be obtained through the publications chairman of the local League, Mrs. Richard Lofton. The national members' magazine, Action, and the Bulletin of the California League are furnished to members from the dues paid, and contain discussions of governmental questions.

The articles on Russia by Edgar Snow currently running in the Saturday Evening Post probably are the fairest to be had on that country and its people, and of great importance for Americans. The New Republic and Nation contain important and reliable articles. The Sunday issue of New York Times has discussions and analyses of international and national problems that are free from bias, factual, and authentic. The Foreign Policy Association leaflet (weekly), and other F. P. A. publications rank with the

OLD SEAMAN

The trove of roving is the one thing clear:
To the wide lands he knew when he went far
He sets his course, taking the sun, to steer;
And nightly, harnessed to the evening star,
Tagged by the wind and tide, the spelling sea,
He fares in memory to his own country.

Though he is anchored like an inland tree,
And long is rooted in his native loam,
He is an alien and must ever be
An exile, who can only dream of home.
Each day when he takes his accustomed place
At his own board he says a second grace.

—ALEX R. SCHMIDT

SPRING

You are free of chain,
Wandering Spring,
Widower of barren plain,
Until plowmen bring
The underneath to lure you near and clip your wing.

Hidden you must be,
Minstrel Spring,
Lover of the naked tree,
Until blossoms wring,
From you, shape and form, changeless as the song you sing.

Boast not of your yield,
Aging Spring,
Father of the growing field,
Until the scythes ring,
Across the land, the harvest tune of everything.

—ELIZABETH HOLT SUTTON

CHILD-SPRING

Breathe to your heart
Clean air of spring,
Pink-white of buds
Born despite dawn frost-crystals,
Remnants of winter-fury.

Breathe deep to your heart
World laughter-songs,
Born after winter-tears.

Steep your spirit with spring,
God's young child
Who brings green love
To the world again!

—BEVERLY STOUT

IN EXILE

Beneath a burnished sky, a desert sun,
I dream of headlands which were once my home;
Of misty beaches, where a languid sea
Spread handkerchiefs of lace upon the sand;
Of evenings where the moon trailed by its star
Rode rudderless upon the drifting fog;
And dreaming, seem to feel against my cheek
The cool, wet fingers of the western wind.

Days Before Yesterday

Ella Young, who was interviewed by The Pine Cone last week, gave a lecture at the Golden Bough on March 27, 1926, but strangely enough, no review appeared in the paper. On April 11, 1941, however, The Pine Cone blossomed out with a front page lino cut of Ella Young by Patricia Cunningham, several of Ella Young's poems, and an article about Ella Young by Una Jeffers.

Under the heading, People Talked About, Una Jeffers wrote: "Ella Young was like a Druidess that first time I saw her, in flowing gown against the lovely blue-green curtain of the Golden Bough stage, a wisp of veil about her head, gray eyes shining and hands weaving magic as she named the old Irish gods and heroes and told the deeds they wrought.

"Since that night I have seen her in many different settings; kneeling in the dust of the road trying to succor a wounded snake; hovering on the seat at my side as I drove a long car down that terribly old coast road. Our friends who owned the car sat in an agony of apprehension, but Ella peered and pointed into the chasms at our side, following a hawk's flight, as carefree as if she too had wings.

"Another day John O'Shea led us all from the wooded canyon of Rocky Creek up the steep trail over Long Ridge. We stopped to paint and take breath, and marvel at Ella, tenuous as a wisp of smoke drifting slowly but steadily to the top, and urging Tony Luhan to send out his Indian calls against the mountain.

"In New Mexico last summer when we rode 30 miles with Tony one day to that magic Blue Lake of the Indians, set 12,000 feet high amid snow and clouds, he looked aside at the tall blue columbines growing beneath the aspens and said, 'Ella like it here', and I felt embarrassed that I had begun to find my saddle hard.

"And how she prodded Brett all through one summer up at Del Monte Ranch, high above Taos, and suggested this and that way of doing her book on D. H. Lawrence. Brett said she never could have got it written down without Ella for a goad.

"Then Ella with her naughty discernment and witty tongue! Such fun to hear her describe her friends. 'Of course Mabel was once a Roman senator; I see her quite well, with that ruthlessness, that invincible swing of her toga.'

"One imagines Ella perfectly in her Dublin setting: a high ceilinged drawing room, brilliant talk of writers and painters, eager patriots caught up in the rush of events; but I like to think of her in the North, for she was born in Ballymena, in the very shadow of Slemish Mountain, where St. Patrick herded sheep. We often talked of her as we wandered through those dark stormy glens in Antrim and along the bitter shore. We thought of her by the cromlechs and fairy forts, and on the rocks where Deirdre and the Sons of Usna stopped, coming home from Scotland to 'unmannerly deaths,' and we said, 'It's here Ella Young found out the heroes, and here the Hidden People, and this place gave her that toughness of fibre that carries her frail body through far lands.'

"We had driven through the shadowless, blazing noon of Taos to say goodbye to Ella, who was leaving for California. The pinyons, the stretches of yellow soil and yellow adobe walls, were all too distinct from the magnifying crystal of that rare air. We protested against the brassy glare as we crossed the sun-baked courtyard. Inside Ella's abode was darkness and quiet. With one gesture she thrust away all thought of her luggage, and drawing us down beside her on a low couch she began at once to speak of Galway and the Sea, of days spent with fishermen in their curraghs, those little boats of skin at once fragile and tough. She talked of the seventh wave and the ninth wave, and her magic hands surveyed the lift and the drift of those waves. Coolness encompassed us, dampness permeated the aridity;

Local Cal Alumni Sponsor Scholarship For Carmel Student

Last Monday evening a meeting of the local Alumni of the University of California was held at Sunset School, Mr. Thomas Elston presiding. Mr. Alfred G. Fry reported on plans to contribue toward an annual Freshman scholarship for an outstanding high school graduate from Carmel. The University has agreed to contribute $125 to the $125 to be collected here by Alumni and thus to award $250 to a high school senior whose grades and character entitle him to this recognition. Mr. Elston agreed to receive contributions for this purpose at Box 1826, Carmel, and to keep them in a separate fund to be reported upon at the next meeting. The arrangements should be completed before the end of this month in view of the fact that funds and the name of the successful condidate must be sent to the University by April 15.

Days Before Yesterday

Robin and I, suddenly aware of the change, exclaimed in one breath, 'You've enchanted us! We even feel the spray!'

"Another day in her lecture room at Berkeley I observed her listeners. They were delighted by her witty estimates of literary contemporaries, their imaginations awakened by her Irish sagas of passionate heroic hearts.

"Ella Young is a person of distinction, whether she lectures in Berkeley or does water-magic in Taos; when she takes her place among people of action or sits alone in her cabin on the dunes at Halcyon writing a poem.—Una Jeffers."

Ella Young retired several years ago from lecturing on Celtic mythology at the University of California to live permanently at Halcyon, California. But she comes to Carmel every once in so often to see her old friends, Robinson and Una Jeffers, Noel Sullivan, John O'Shea and Dr. Margaret Levick.

others mentioned. The weekly Bulletin of the United Nations and that of the U. S. State Department are important sources of information. The weekly news magazines are too hurriedly prepared to be completely dependable and must be judged in comparison with other publications, and with the particular interests of their publishers. Newsweek is better than some others, World Report is good. Foreign Affairs is important, Harper's contains excellent articles; United World, the magazine formed by a combination of Asia and some others, is too new to be definitely placed but is worth reading and judging.

Only by wide reading on present conditions can a person get a clear idea of the problems confronting the world today, problems which the American citizen will have a hand in settling, either by default to the detriment of civilization if he is indifferent, or by vigorous action to an advance away from chaos if he gives wise thought to all factors in the situation and uses his influence against selfish decisions and narrow national benefits which in the long run cease to be benefits. A group of persons working together over this field can divide the work and in weekly, or fortnightly discussion meetings share their information, pool their findings and arrive at conclusions more readily than by working alone. But hard and fast decisions must be distrusted, as changing conditions impose the necessity of keeping an open mind and a willingness to entertain new and even untried points of view. Eternal vigilance against hardening of the mental arteries.

Time Change for Psychology Class

Mr. John H. Westover, Principal of the Carmel Adult School, has announced a change in schedule for the class in the Literature of Applied Psychology which is conducted every week by Mrs. Glenn Clairmonte. This class, which formerly met on Wednesday afternoons, will hereafter hold its session on Monday afternoons from two to four, in the Library of Sunset School. If the majority of the members prefer to meet on Friday, it is possible that a second change will be made after votes have been secured. For the present, however, Mrs. Clairmonte will meet the class next Monday at two o'clock in the Library.

The discussion on Dr. Karen Horney's "Your Inner Conflicts" will be continued, and an outline of her earlier book on Self-analysis will be given. Visitors are welcome.

IT'S a picture in a lot of ways, this big-'n'-beautiful Buick—

The picture of things-to-come in automobile styling—long, follow-through fenders, sleek lines, broad and solid look.

The picture of dynamic action, with its bonnet jam-packed with Fireball power, equally ready, equally willing for creep-speed jaunt or quick-paced emergency call.

The picture of perfect poise—with plenty of roadweight for solidity—cushioned all around on soft coil springs for jarless ease.

The picture of precise and exacting manufacture, with engine tolerances often closer than in airplane practice—bodies floated on new Silent Zone mountings for tautness and quiet—everything from rear-axle strut rods to water pump seal all tidily buttoned up to give you the best to be had today.

You don't have to be told how eyes follow you when you're behind this wheel. You can sample for yourself the great ease of this gallant traveler, the comfort, the room, the thrill-of-a-lifetime lift that answers every nudge of your foot on the treadle.

You've probably even told yourself, "Well, someday..."

Hal Garrott News

Following their plan to study means of community development on the Peninsula, the Monterey Peninsula American Association of University Women will have Mr. Hal Garrott as speaker for the regular meeting next Wednesday evening, March 19, at 7:45 at the home of Mrs. Charles E. Simpson, 1176 Harrison street, Monterey. Mr. Garrott is honorary chairman of the Monterey Peninsula Auditorium Association, and this project, so dear to his heart and to many Peninsula residents, will form the topic for the evening. The A. A. U. W. members believe that an institution that promises so much for the cultural and entertainment activities of the community merits careful consideration.

Visitors to Carmel who are members of the organization in their home towns are welcome to attend the meeting and may contact Miss Effa Spencer, phone 1549-J for further particulars.

He met Joan Emblin of Teddington, and the British-American alliance was made in short order. Mr. and Mrs. Tocher, Sr., now spend their weekends in Berkeley where the Juniors live.

Whether or not you've ever worn an anklet in your life, now is a wonderful time to succumb to the temptation, for THE STOCKING SHOP up in the Golden Bough Court on Ocean Avenue opposite the Pine Inn has received a mammoth shipment of anklets which deserve the epithet elegant. To begin with, you may have for only 59c a pair of fine mercerized cotton anklets, full-fashioned, pre-shrunk and in fine solid colors and hues, including white. Pure wool anklets, again full fashioned and pre-shrunk, come in absolutely delectable colors and there are wool and nylon anklets in soft coral, blue, yellow, pink, aqua, white and a wonderful shade called cocoa. The nylon ones, called Jeepers, have a pure nylon top and a soft woolen foot, both of which will retain original shape and will neither shrink or mat. There are some handsome wool and nylon knit gloves to match several of the colors and they're light and bright enough to wear the year round in Carmel. If I were a school girl I'd foot it down to THE STOCKING SHOP immediately.

Over a great box of Easter books Miss Edith Griffin in THE VILLAGE BOOK SHOP reports that Blood Brother by Carmel's Elliott Arnold is becoming increasingly popular. It's a fine long book and one to sink into. Autographed copies are to be had, too. As for the Easter books, among them you will find some choice editions. There's one, The Golden Egg Book, a new member of the large and splendid Golden Book family, which a child would love for its bright and shining cover and illustrations. A new novel of San Francisco, Naomi Martin, by Clarkson Crane, came out yesterday, by the way, published by Harcourt Brace as were his other novels.

A long overdue visit to THE COVERED WAGON on Dolores revealed a good supply of paper napkins in both cocktail and luncheon size in bright designs and a large group of small handcarved dogs from Italy very reasonably priced. There's a tiny gray terrier and a sober Scotty and a square Pekingese among a whole kennelful of dogs.

There's a beautiful decanter in GUMP'S on Dolores which relies for its beauty on simplicity of line. It's made by Tiffin of clear crystal, and its stopper is a giant teardrop. A most impressive wine-color might catch your eye, too. It's in heavy silverplate with a fluted base and two round handles held by lion heads, and its price is surprisingly low and its polish glitteringly high. In GUMP'S there's an interesting tray of eight old-fashioned glasses, too, with the glasses set on the tray in rings in a gyroscopic fashion so that the glasses remain on even keel however the tray may tip.

Saint Patrick's Day calls for shamrocks but a fourleafed clover is good any day, and THE N. B. FLOWER SHOP on Dolores has pots of bright clovers which, surprisingly, are all fourleafed. Besides the fourleafed clovers, there are great sunbursts of potted cinerarias and banks of cool ferns for house plants, tiny fragile ones, and tangled masses of ivy and philodendron, lush and beautiful plants in a hundred forms. There's even a great cattelya orchid plant growing happily and boasting two flowers today. For sheer spring joy there are pink primulas and soft pink tulips and blossoming fruit branches, almond and quince.

If it comes from the sea you'll find it lying fresh and glittering on ice beds at THE PACIFIC MUTUAL FISH COMPANY on the Monterey Wharf. There's fresh tuna from San Pedro and fresh crabs from San Francisco. From local waters the fishermen pull sand dabs and pompano and perch and even the giant shrimp or prawns. The pompano or butter fish is sweeter even than the sand dab, and while the capizoni is as wicked a looking customer as you will find on the wharf, his adherents say he's a great delicacy. Abalone is coming in this weekend, too, for a perfect Monterey fish-dish.

The finest, softest batiste which used to appear only in our better babies' christening dresses is used for the dainty white blouses in THE COLLEGIATE DRESS SHOP on Alvarado street in Monterey. They're beautiful blouses with fine details, crisp lace and short sleeves. Tailored cotton blouses with rows of fine stitching and short sleeves look most handsome, and for more formal occasions THE COLLEGIATE DRESS SHOP has a beautiful group of crepe blouses made with a soft shoulder line and an interesting and becoming draped short sleeve. These come in black and pastels. There's another group of blouses with long or push up sleeves and Peter Pan or wing collars made in white, tan, gold or aqua of a material which is exceptionally fine.

Denim, corduroy and chambray can't be surpassed for small children's clothes, especially when it's of the fine quality to be found in the new group of overalls for children two to six in PUTNAM AND RAGGETT up on Ocean Avenue. The overalls are very well made and some of the chambray ones have two bright applique strawberry pockets. They're pre-shrunk and durable, and the denim and chambray ones come in soft shades of blue, while the corduroys may be had in red, blue, green and brown.

When the sun comes out it's time to have a meal at ANGELO'S on Old Fisherman's Wharf in Monterey. ANGELO'S is always there, of course, and it's good to eat there in rain or fog when there's a fire on the hearth, but for bright sunny days there's no place like ANGELO'S balcony, where you can sit and eat while all the business of fish and birds and boats and fishermen goes on under your eyrie. This weekend abalone is making its come-back, and over an abalone steak at ANGELO'S you can watch the wind and the weather and the water.

Now just suppose you decide all in a minute to have a picnic. All you need do is call THE VILLAGE CORNER, 1138-J, say, "Please pack me a lunch," and in no time at all you can drive by and collect your party, all packed with napkins and spoons and straws, and head for the beach or the Valley or Big Sur. You may have salads, sandwiches, as well as other fountain produce, and if you wish, your ice cream will be packed in a special bag to keep it cold. There's always coffee, too. Order your coffee or a milkshake or soda on the way into the Post Office and when you come out it will be waiting for you.

A new lending library with no membership dues, no time limits, is the new and welcome department of THE CARMEL BOOKSELLERS SHOP on Mission north of Fifth. New fiction and non-fiction books may be rented at five cents a day. Older books are yours for ten cents a week. There is a minimum charge of ten cents for any rental, but that's the only limitation. David Duncan's Shade of Time has been the best-renting mystery so far. The new Steinbeck book is there, as well as Eric Sevareid's new book and Countess Kinnoull's Come Home, Traveller.

Col. Hillyer Speaker For Adult Class

Next Tuesday evening Colonel Roy N. Hillyer will address Mrs. Gleen Clairmonte's class in Current Literature on the subject of the history books, slanted in favor of Fascism, which he found in Japanese occupied territory in the South Pacific when he entered conquered areas as Chaplain with our Armed forces. He has many rich experiences with which he has entertained a number of audiences in this county, and for this book-loving group he will tell among other things the effects of the Fascist history teaching which he discovered. Visitors are invited to attend this class, which is part of the Adult School program. It meets at 7:30 every Tuesday evening in Room 11 of Sunset School.

Section 14. All ordinances and parts of ordinances insofar as they conflict with this ordinance are hereby repealed.

Section 15. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force one (1) week after the date of publication.

enough to avoid disaster.

They come to Carmel because it calls to and satisfies their craving for beauty, but unforunately they have not analyzed just what are the elements that make up that beauty, and they do not recognize their worth when they interfere with their own pursuits or interests. They storm the council for rezoning, permission to cut trees, street paving, street lights, not realizing that you have to sacrifice some measure of convenience to beauty, and some measure of financial gain. Their demands on the council, and those of some of the oldtimers who have been equally self-seeking, have become so burdensome along with the many other problems of running the community, that the council has felt that it does not have the time to give them the thought and study they deserve.

The Pine Cone at one time thought the whole matter could be disposed of very simply by the council's saying No—unqualifiedly, unfailing, unflinchingly. However—

There are some problems that cannot be solved by No, even in Carmel.

It is better to make an over-all plan for street drainage than to go along hit and miss, carrying the water out of one bad area to dump it into another. It is better to work out once and for all what the town is going to do about streets and reach some sort of compromise between beauty and utility, than to have furious battle, street by street, between the improvement wanters and the improvement not-wanters, with the council in the middle.

We hate to see power transferred from an elective body to an appointive body, but since the council felt it had to delegate some of its duties, Mayor Fred Godwin couldn't have found a better group of people to entrust with Carmel's most vital interests than the people he chose.

And lest the citizens be uneasy that later planning commissions may not be so well chosen, let them take consolation in the safeguards that went into the empowering ordinance. In all important matters the door is left open to appeal to the council. Not only by those whose requests have been denied by the planning commission but also by the citizens at large if they feel that the interests of the community have been jeopardized by a decision of the planning commission favorable to an individual petitioner. In such case, any group of citizens, with a petition signed by fifteen names, can take a "yes" decision of the commission to the council for review. This is an unusual—a strictly Carmel—provision included in the empowering ordinance at the suggestion of The Pine Cone editor. Right of appeal is generally restricted to the individual citizen who has received an unfavorable answer to his request; it is seldom provided to the citizens at large who may feel that granting the individual's request is detrimental to their interests.

The city attorney, and the council, in drawing up the empowering ordinance, labored long and sincerely to provide every possible safeguard.

Not that we believe safeguards will be needed against the actions of the present planning commission, but the safeguards are there if they are needed in the future. Commission personnel changes over a period of years, but Carmel is well protected from arbitrary action. If the citizens at any time do not like what the planning commission is doing, they certainly have the power to do something about it.—Wilma Cook.

mel street can be put in serviceable condition without sacrificing its trees and winding contours.

The new group, consisting of another former mayor, Herbert Heron, a former city councilwoman, Clara Kellogg, Post Master Ernest Bixler, Councilman Craig, and Mrs. Talbert Josselyn, who are voting members, and ex-officio members Peter Mawdsley, city clerk, and Floyd Adams, building inspector, were welcomed by Mayor Fred Godwin (see editorial column.) City Attorney William Hudson outlined their duties and powers. Zoning matters are initiated with them; they pass on building permits; they will be called upon to study traffic, drainage, and street improvement problems.

Two matters are waiting their attention, a petition for rezoning the south side of Dolores from Fourth to Fifth; and the mayor will ask them for a recommendation on the application of Mae Crawford to have the pine removed from in front of her property on Mission at Sixth, north of Charles Childers' Service Station. The planning commission may not act on trees, only advise, as the council has kept tree matters in its own jurisdiction.

The matters will come up at the adjourned meeting next Wednesday at 4:00 p. m. At the same time there will be continuation of the discussion of principles and policy of the commission. During the discussion at this week's meeting, City Clerk Mawdsley suggested that the material in a statement (named a magna charta for Carmel by The Pine Cone) made by McCreery when he was mayor, on the occasion of the council's refusal to finance a chamber of commerce in Carmel, be incorporated in any statement of policy the planning commission may make.

Therese Whiteside Wins Blue Ribbon

More than fifty people turned out to see Therese Whiteside's color photograph exhibit at Leota Tucker's class at Sunset School recently. Mrs. Whiteside, who does all her work with a 25-year-old $10 camera and uses the new Ansco color film, has received a blue ribbon for her entry in the exhibit of the Chicago International Museum. This is her second prize within the last several months.

The prize-winning shot was of a white yucca against a hill with the deep blues of the sea and sky south of Big Sur. Mrs. Whiteside, who lives down in the Sur region near Castro beach, finds most of her material for photographs in the landscape around her home with its vivid sunsets, spectacular mountains and changing sea.

Alice MacGowan

At the age of eighty-nine years, Alice MacGowan died last Monday in Los Gatos.

To those who knew the old Carmel and to those familiar with the writings of a former generation, this news will bring many memories.

Miss MacGowan had been living for some years at Los Gatos with her niece, the former Katherine Cooke, now Mrs. John Ryan, and her sister, Grace MacGowan Cooke, who passed away in January, 1944.

In the old days, when Carmel was really a village—a shabby, unpretentious, tumultuous and always interesting community—she was a vital person. She and her sister, Grace, and the latter's two children, Helen and Kit, came here in 1908.

At that time the names, MacGowan and Cooke, were always coupled, for the two sisters had already gained nation wide popularity as writers of book and magazine fiction. Alice had been, first of all, a newspaper woman, working for New York syndicates. Then she and Grace had gone to the Tennessee mountains where they had made themselves nationally known for collaborations dealing with the hill folk—among the most notable of these a story attacking the child labor problem. They had left Tennessee and were living at Helicon Hall, a socialist colony headed by Upton Sinclair in New Jersey, when the building was burned to the ground. With Michael Williams, Sinclair Lewis, William Benet and a number of others, they then headed for Carmel.

A year or two later Herbert Heron's Forest Theatre project became a reality—and incidentally a definite step forward in California out-of-door drama. Alice and Grace were among the more prominent figures on the board of directors.

The list of popular books and magazine serials turned out by the two sisters is formidable; and for years their names were frequently on the covers of national magazines.

But Alice MacGowan is best remembered here for her personality—for her very vivid personality. She was never uninteresting. She was always eager. And, above all, she was always kindly. In those old days, when all hands in this then small community used to disagree violently over what we thought were vital details in civic life, I don't think anyone ever met her without seeing her face light up with a look of welcome.

She had been in ill health for some time before she died. During her latter years she had embraced the Catholic faith. Funeral services were held in Los Gatos.

—Fred Bechdolt.

BROKEN OUT AGAIN

Every once in a while somebody hits the old snag, that might be called the eternal question. Is this place Carmel or is it Carmel-by-the-Sea? An important letter just received from Washington by the law firm of Robison and Whittlesey was addressed Carmel-by-the-Sea, postmarked February 19, and returned to writer marked "no such post office." The thing is somewhat baffling to those who do not know that the village was incorporated as Carmel-by-the-Sea but the Post Office is Carmel.

Dr. Kellersberger To Speak On Leper Mission, March 21

Dr. Eugene R. Kellersberger, who will speak at the Mayflower Church in Pacific Grove on Friday, March 21, at 2:30 p. m., on medical work among victims of leprosy, has had wide experience with the American Mission to Lepers in foreign countries. He comes here under the auspices of the Monterey Peninsula Council of Church Women, of which Mrs. Ramsey Benson is president.

He and Mrs. Kellersberger recently returned to this country after visits to leprosy colonies in twenty-five countries in which they saw 3500 sufferers from the dread disease. They traveled 46,000 miles, using airplane, automobile, river boats, in fact practically every known means of travel in their inspection tour of the world's medical centers for treatment of leprosy. For twenty-four years the couple were medical missionaries in the Belgian Congo, where they founded villages for natives who were cast out from their homes because of the disease. In addition Dr. Kellersberger cured 10,000 persons afflicted with African sleeping sickness, for which service he was decorated by the Belgian government.

Mrs. Kellersberger has made known the dramatic situations and serious need in Africa through her books, Congo Crosses, God's Ravens—now in its fifth edition—, The Salt Baby, and Betty, as well as numerous stories by the missionaries, which she edited. The couple represented the Presbyterian church of America, in their African work, but the doctor recently was appointed general secretary of the American Mission to Lepers, and their work will be in this country, publicizing and promoting the humanitarian service of the organization.

sell, Perry Brown, Les Bracisco, Dick Mulholland, Paul Artellan, Bob Burgess, and Dick Garguilo are trying out for the flychasing department.

Although swimming is not carried on throughout the league, Carmel will have a team and engage in informal meets with Monterey and other free lance schools. Natators who will display their talents for Carmel are: Paul Warner, Tom Handley, Harry Watson, Dave Hudson, Lew McCreery, Dick Garguilo, William Wilde, Eric Otto, Roger Byers, Barry Daggy, Bob Morrisseau, Tim McCormick, and John Blinks. Chuck Dawson will teach the watermen how to keep their heads above water.

Youth Wants Share In Family Life, Says Dorothy Wright

The pendulum is swinging back. Young people are wanting a shared family life, are wanting their part in the family responsibilities and pleasures and to have the family share in theirs, Miss D. L. Wright, Girls' Vice-Principal at Carmel High School told All Saints' Woman's Auxiliary at their meeting Wednesday at Parish House.

Miss Wright feels that the proposed recreation center at the High School will do much to bring families together, since the students will share the swimming pool, barbecue pit, and game rooms with the adults on certain days of the week.

Scholarships to college with "no strings attached to them" were suggested by Miss Wright as practical ways in which adult good will to the students could be expressed.

In comparing high school enrollment here with other communities the vice principal said that in Carmel 99 per cent of the young people of high school age are enrolled in high school, while the average for the entire nation is only 54. Of Carmel High School Students, 85 per cent are planning to go to college.

John Weigold

Mr. John Weigold, a resident of Carmel for the last twenty-eight years, died suddenly at his home at Dolores Street near Eighth last Tuesday, at the age of forty-two.

He was a native of Danville, Pennsylvania, and was considered to be in good health, and was not under the care of a physician. Coroner attributed the death to a heart condition. He leaves his wife, Eleanor Weigold, who was well known in Carmel as the local Manager of the Western Union Office, and a son, John Carl Weigold, Jr., who was recently discharged from the service. He is also survived in Carmel by his mother, Mrs. Margaret Ammermann, a brother, Fred Ammermann, and two sisters, Mrs. Margaret Sloane, and Mrs. Leonard Selkicky of Montery. Funeral services will be held today at two p. m. at the T. A. Dorney Chapel, Mr. Carl Steffin, a Lutheran pastor of Monterey, officiating. Interment will take place in the Monterey City Cemetery.

Hi Chatter

By MARY GREGORY

A pleasant hour was spent last Monday by those attending the vocational assembly, for Mr. Bob Sabin of KDON was the guest speaker. Mr. Sabin told all about the production end of broadcasting, illustrated by many clever anecdotes. Necessary training and other interesting details were also included in his talk, which was greatly enjoyed by all.

Another Monday event was an expedition to Salinas Junior College, in which Carmel's best badminton players met Jay Cee's best. Sue Dekker was first singles player, Shirley Petty second; Rosemarie Krupocki and Wanda Warren were the first doubles team, Joy Wescott and Mary McElroy second, and Laurel Hildebrand and Joan Dillingham third. Carmel won several matches, but no sets. A return tournament will be played next week when Salinas is Carmel's guest.

A Sports Day with Watsonville, organized by the G. A. A. with volleyball manager Kathie von Meier as general chairman, will occur here tomorrow morning. Each school will have four teams, representing each of the four classes, and each team will play the four teams of the other school, making 16 games in all. A box lunch will be served, with ice cream and milk provided by the G. A. A.

Last Tuesday morning 11 Carmel students sweated over the Stanford Aptitude test, the results of which should be known within the month. The test, given in Monterey for all Peninsula students, was taken by Joan Carr, Sue Dekker, Dagmar Drier, Joanne Gorham, Teddy Greene, Mary Gregory, Susan Moore, John Chitwood, Dave Hudson, Blair McDonald and Bill Sapsis of Carmel.

Three Carmel students have entered a national journalism contest which the Scholastic Magazine is sponsoring for all high school students. Becky Bell submitted a poem, Karen Williams a short story, and Paul Warner a short story and poem.

Red Cross Reaches Three-fifths of Quota

Mathew C. Jenkins, chairman of the 1947 fund drive for the Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross, believes Carmel will again be the first in California to reach its quota.

Up to last night $9,657.00 of the quota of $15,320.00 had been subscribed and the daily returns indicate that the entire quota will be reached very soon. Captains of the various districts are working diligently to put the Carmel Chapter over the top in first place in the state.

"I hope to be able to announce in the next week's issue of the Pine Cone that we have reached our quota and I believe we will, as usual, be first", said Chairman Jenkins yesterday. "It is obvious that the people of this district realize that it is essential that this worthy service to the armed forces overseas and in this country, and all the other work the Red Cross does, including the work it does right here on the Peninsula, must be carried on and the citizens have been quick to respond to the call for funds."

Ricketts And Freeman Open New Sport Shop

Like ham and eggs, Gene Ricketts and a sporting goods store should go together. There is no more all around sportsman than Ricketts, who is not only an enthusiastic hunter and fisherman, but has been playing Abalone League ball since he came to Carmel in 1929. And whenever there have been any town softball teams to enter the P. G. League, Gene has been in there swinging a potent bat along with the rest of them.

With a long-time friend from San Mateo, Reed Freeman, for a partner, Ricketts is holding the grand opening of a new sporting goods store on San Carlos between Fifth and Sixth tomorrow morning at 9 a. m. The store will occupy part of the building that Ricketts built two years ago to house the McDonald Dairy, which he sold several months ago to the Carmel Dairy.

Ricketts' partner, Reed Freeman, since his discharge from the service—he was a captain in the army for four years—has been district salesman for Firestone products out of Salinas. He bought a home here and became a Carmel resident last September.

Gene is not the only Ricketts sportsman. His wife, the former Helen Turner, a Carmel girl, and the junior Ricketts, Pat and Mike, are also Abalone League players and enthusiasts.

Robinson Jeffers Completing New Poem, Double Axe

garde movement he said, "It's a distorted thing and it has worked to its end. There's not much farther for it to go." James Joyce, however, was a great man. One should not confuse the individual with the movement to which he happens to belong.

"It seems to me in writing about the rise and fall of civilization that artistic work goes up and down. But it's not because the artists can't do it any more that it goes down, but because they have lost the taste and desire to do better. Picasso can draw marvellously. Dali can draw marvellously too. Instead, he has done all those queer stunts."

But people shouldn't look to writers and artists for leadership. "People are too much inclined to trust the movement, governments and so on. They expect others to do things they ought to do for themselves."

Jeffers, who has always stood apart from mass trends in thinking, is vastly more interested in permanent things such as moral values, landscapes, the stars, the sea and psychological conflicts than in the passing scene. When speaking of the coast country and the feeling of conflict between the characters of his poems and the landscape, he admitted, "I'm rather more on the side of the landscape. People have treated the landscape so badly in America."

Robinson Jeffers first went down the coast on the horse-drawn mail stage in December of 1914, shortly after he and his wife, Una, came to live in Carmel. "The coast seemed solitary and there was a light rain."

The Jeffers went down the coast once or twice a year after that, and although he never wrote about the actual people of the coast, the mood of the place took strong hold on him and powerfully influenced the creation of such great narrative poems as The Roan Stallion, Tamar, Cawdor, Give Your Heart to the Hawks, Thurso's Landing, Women of Point Sur, the Loving Shepherdess and all the rest.

"My first impression of the coast was in winter time when it was darker and more sinister. Perhaps I shouldn't have said sinister," he corrected himself. "Rather: hostile to the inhabitants."

In the dark canyons where cypress trees planted by settlers still guarded deserted shacks against the wind, and where, as Una Jeffers added, one found "an old cartwheel or calla lilies growing out of a brick," Jeffers felt a sombre, brooding, ghostly quality, an atmosphere of conflict between man and nature which seemed to breed tragedy, violence, cataclysm.

"I was shocked later when I saw the Big Sur in summer and the hills golden," he added.

The coast country is not ghostly in the same sense that European landscapes are, however. It's a different thing altogether. Ireland, particularly, he found a ghostly place.

"Ireland is a quiet place with a lot of graveyards and it rains a great deal," he described. "In Ireland I heard many ghost stories. There was a castle in Ireland haunted by a ghost announced by a horrible smell." He paused, grinning. "It was a sewer smell. The ghost was ten feet tall, misformed, misshapen. I didn't see it, however. But I knew a man who said he saw it." (Or smelled it, rather.)

All of Europe had a ghostly quality to it, but he noticed it particularly in Ireland where "every stone you see in the fields has been part of a wall that fell down again." Europe has subdued its landscape, made it human. It lacks the magnificent vitality of the American landscape which seems to possess a strong, independent mood of its own.

"I wouldn't want to live in Ireland forever," Jeffers said. "It's like being dead and at peace for awhile and coming back to life when you get home again."

"It's extraordinary to me the desperate situation England is in now," he continued. "Lippman said we ought to help England now so she'll help us in the future when our hour of need comes upon us. That seems rather optimistic." England, he feels, is unlikely to recover from the death blow dealt it by the recent war. Speaking of a poem about prehistoric ghosts in England in his book, Descent to the Dead, he recalled, "The dead seemed happy to see the living going downhill."

And the ghosts of the future? Jeffers pondered, rolling a cigarette.

"It seems to me odd that we can't foresee the future more than we do," he said at last. "It's already built. It seems as if we ought to be able to see."

Jeffers' two-act play Medea, freely adapted from the play of Euripedes, which was published last spring and scheduled to be produced in New York by the Theatre Guild with Judith Anderson in the title role, has been held up for a variety of reasons, but when Judith Anderson was at Tor House recently, she said it might first be produced in London and Paris and then brought to New York.

Jeffers who has written two plays (Medea and Tower Beyond Tragedy) has never been particularly attracted to the theatre and has seen only four plays in his life: Julius Caesar when he was a little boy; a play in Switzerland; and two plays in Carmel. One was Macbeth with Bert Heron and Flavia Flavin playing the leads and "it was very funny in spots," and the other was The Tower Beyond Tragedy, starring Judith Anderson as Clytemnestra.

The Tower Beyond Tragedy was first produced at the University of California. "I wouldn't go to Berkeley to see the Tower, although Una and Garth went. But when they gave The Tower Beyond Tragedy in Carmel I had to go."

"It's embarrassing for an author to be present at his own play," he explained, evidently shuddering at the memory of the calls for Author, Author that went on night after night at the Forest Theatre in the summer of 1940.

Extremely shy of the spotlight, Robinson Jeffers is a man whose energies seem powerfully channelled underground, flowing with great concentration into his verse, leaving little need to spill over into parties, people, conversation. As Una Jeffers said before we left, "You waste so much energy and miss so much of the real things in living if you dash around to parties all the time. We love our friends, but if we go out too often we miss the beauty of the sea and the fire and the simple things at home—the real things."

With her gray hair wound in a braid around her head, her vivid conversation and enthusiastic spirit, Una Jeffers seemed to present a marvelous counterpoint to the more silent, indrawn personality of her husband, and as the fire flickered low at Tor House, it was easy to understand why Jeffers had dedicated all of his poetry to her and said (in the introduction to his Selected Poetry) that she was "more like a woman in a Scotch ballad . . . or like a falcon than like any ordinary person."

PANTS CAUSE ALARM

Tuesday afternoon at 1:40 a fire signal from District 25 summoned fifteen members of the Fire Department to the residence of W. F. Selgreath at 13th and San Carlos. The Mack Truck and the Salvage Truck arrived at the scene of smoke in one minute flat and discovered that Mrs. Selgreath had decided to dry out her husband's pants in the kitchen oven. During the process however she had retired for a siesta, and the pants reminded about themselves when the temperature became unbearable. No serious damage was effected.
